Friends,

We are sure that our supporters will be delighted to know that DignitySA is continuing its fight for South Africans to be allowed to die with dignity. We are making great strides towards legalising Advance Directives (more on this in the weeks to come) and have applied to intervene in a new court challenge wherein Dr Sue Walter, a terminally ill palliative care specialist, and Dieter Harck, a businessman living with Motor Neuron Disease, are applying for the right to an assisted death.

This High Court matter will possibly coincide with the World Federation of Right to Die Societies' 22nd biennial conference in Cape Town, hosted by DignitySA. We would be thrilled if you could join us at the Conference on the 7th and 8th of September.

Go to the NEWS section below or to www.assisteddying2018.com for more information and to book.

As you can see, our goals for 2018 are massive and, in order to ensure success, we need your support, now more than ever. Do consider volunteering a few hours of your time, donating to our cause, or becoming a member.

We invite you to visit our brand spanking new website, www.dignitysouthafrica.org, to see how you can get involved.

Please pass this email along to family, friends and colleagues who would also want to champion our cause.

With gratitude,
The DignitySA Team

world (23 countries are being represented) but also a robust debate between role players in this, the most hotly debated topic of our age. To find out more or to attend, click on the image above.

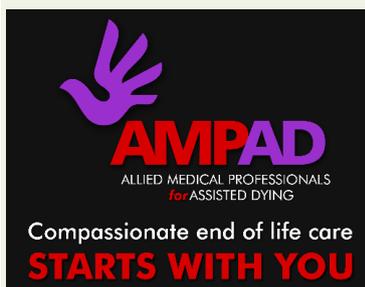

Student Sponsorship

We have been approached by a number of students keen to attend but unable to due to financial constraints.

With your help, we can ensure that the very people in whose hands we may one day find ourselves are given an opportunity to make up their own minds about this sometimes contentious issue, by being exposed to the rational thinking of world leaders in the movement.

Join our initiative

We are a national campaign and membership organisation demanding greater choice and control to alleviate end of life suffering.

We need your support to stop unnecessary suffering at the end of life.

Help us by joining the campaign and spreading the word.

Your stories matter

"Brittany walked to the edge of life and dove, face first, arms arched forward, fingers pressed together, piercing the surface of the whatever-comes-next with precision. Brittany taught us the power of personal story. She taught us that speaking up, even when our voices shake, is important. The stories of the terminally-ill are important."

~ Deborah Ziegler, mother of Brittany Maynard

Calling on Volunteers

We rely on our passionate supporters to engage with their communities, advocate for patient rights and to ensure South Africans are informed about assisted dying.

Volunteers share in our mission by organising events, facilitating educational workshops and recruiting new supporters within their communities.
